SELDEN & M'NAIR,

HAVE JUST RECEIVED,

AN EXTENSIVE ASSORTMENT OF SEASONABLE

DRY GOODS,

In Wood, between Third and Fourth streets.

Pittsburgh, May 4, 1819.

To Rent or Sell,

A BREWERY, pleasantly situated on the bank of the Ohio river in the town of Gallipolis, county of Gallia and state of Ohio.

This Brewery is in complete operation, and has all the necessary buildings &c. adjoining the same, such as malt-house, kiln, pump &c. There is a piece of woodland attached to the property, where timber and firewood can be obtained in any quantity, for the use of the brewery. Barley can also be had on reasonable terms from the farmers in the neighbourhood, who now attend pretty largely to the cultivation thereof.

This brewery is in a fine situation for business 4 miles below the mouth of the Great Kenhawa, on which river any quantity of malt liquors can be sold for the consumption of the Salt works. The buildings and pump are calculated for the establishment of a Distillery, which would be of great advantage in Gallipolis where there is none.

Terms will be made easy and accommodating. For further particulars, apply to

PETER MAGNIER.

The Ohio River.

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that proposals will be received by the subscribers, for improving the navigation of the Ohio River from the city of Pittsburgh to the line of the state of Pennsylvania, a distance of about 40 miles, from this time until the first of December next.

The contemplated improvement will consist in removing the large stones from the bed of the river, and in cutting an artificial channel through the shoals and ripples of a certain depth and width. The work necessary to effect this object would be of a very simple kind. The stones lying in the channel are not attached to the bed of the river—none of them are so large as to require to be blown, and the artificial channel would have to be opened through sand and gravel.

The subscribers reside in Pittsburgh, and would be happy to afford every information upon the subject to any enterprizing persons disposed to undertake the work.

WESTERN HOTEL,

No. 228 MARKET STREET,

Sign of General Washington.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has taken that well known establishment in Market street, next door to the Pittsburgh Mail Stage Office, and lately occupied by Mr. George Yohe. To those who have been accustomed to resort to this house, it is unnecessary to point out its superior advantages. For the information of others we deem it necessary to state that its situation is central, high, healthy and convenient to business; an extensive range of back buildings, consisting of lodging rooms, afford a fine view of the city to the eastward, and admit a free and uninterrupted circulation of air—and what will give them a decided preference in the opinion of many, is the attachment thereto of balconies, so constructed as not only to afford pleasant promenades, but easy means of escape in the event of any necessity from any sudden alarm of fire. The great Western Stages start every morning from the door, and on the premises is one of the best Livery Stables in the city, conducted by Mr. John Tomlinson, where travellers' horses will be faithfully attended to. With these advantages, and some other improvements now making added to his own unremitted exertions to please, the subscriber confidently hopes for, and very respectfully solicits a share of public patronage.

CASH,

I HAVE determined to sell my FARM, at the fork of Chartier's creek, in the county of Washington, fifteen miles from Pittsburgh, consisting of about 214 acres, so low for CASH as to make it a great object for any one having the command of money. Its advantages in point of soil, timber, water, sugar-camps, neighbourhood, proximity to mills, markets, the turnpike road from Washington to Pittsburgh, meeting houses and an excellent college, are well known—Added to these, some enterprising individuals of capital, are now boring for Salt within a quarter of a mile of it, at a lick which has produced salt from the surface, so that no doubt is entertained of their success. This will be useful, not only to the vicinity in general, but it will be of peculiar benefit to the tract hereby offered for sale, as it will afford a constant market for the stone coal with which the land abounds. I will give the purchaser a PATENT in my own name and a general warranty deed. The title is indisputable. I am willing to dispose of eight other tracts, on moderate terms.

Pittsburgh Gazette.

FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 22, 1819

We present with great pleasure to our readers the following proceedings of a Town meeting held on Saturday last, as they serve to shew that our citizens have risen from their slumbers, and are beginning to exert their energies, for their own and the public good. All the obstructions in the River, between this place and Wheeling, which were dangerous to the navigation are now removed, and, although the channel still requires to be deepened, boats may now pass in safety at any season. This great object has been affected by the exertions of a committee appointed at a Town meeting held some time ago. These gentlemen having collected a sum of money from their fellow citizens, and enlisted an active band of assistants, proceeded to the work with a zeal which reflects on them the highest honour. It appears however, that they have expended more money than had been subscribed, and that a further call is to be made upon us, to enable them to fulfil their contracts, as well as to repay them the advances which they have made. We need not say that we hope that this call will not be made in vain—for we feel confident that our citizens will be eager to share the honour of contributing to a work of such extensive utility.

A town meeting was held on this day, by public notice, at the court house in the city of Pittsburgh.

WM. HAYS, CHAIRMAN.

JAMES HALL, SECY.

The meeting having been called for the discussion of certain points relative to the navigation of the Ohio river, a verbal report on this subject was laid before it by William Wilkins, Esq. in which he stated the exertions made by the committee appointed at the last town meeting, the progress made in the work, and the amount of expense incurred, after which the following resolutions were offered and adopted:

Resolved, that this meeting highly approve of the conduct of the committee appointed at the last town meeting, on the subject of the navigation of the river, of which Mathew B. Lowrie, Esq. is chairman, and return their thanks to them and to the citizens employed in the work, for their zealous and patriotic exertions.

Resolved, that this meeting sanctions and approves of the expenditure made by the committee beyond the amount of money collected, and that the citizens present will cheerfully join in remunerating them for the advances they have made.

Resolved, that the committee which has already called on the citizens for their subscriptions, be authorised and requested to call again on such citizens as are not present at this meeting, for a further sum to aid in discharging the debt incurred.

A liberal subscription was then received from the gentlemen present, and after passing a resolution to have these proceedings published,

The meeting adjourned.

JAMES HALL, Secy.

October, 16, 1819.

Mr. Campbell, author of the Pleasures of Hope, and other poems of celebrity, has lately published a work entitled "Specimens of the British Poets, with Biographical and Critical Notices, and an Essay on English Poetry." We have been able only to glance at the work, but have seen enough to satisfy us that it contains a body of sound and elegant Criticism, conveyed in a style the most chaste and expressive. The following happy passage is from the article on Cowper:

"The nature of Cowper's works makes us peculiarly identify the poet and the man in perusing them. As an individual, he was retired and weaned from the vanities of the world; and as an original writer, he left the ambitious and luxuriant subjects of fiction and passion, for those of real life and simple nature, and for the development of his own earnest feelings, in behalf of moral and religious truth. His language has such a masculine idiomatic strength, and his manner, whether he rises into grace, or falls into negligence, has so much plain and familiar freedom, that we read no poetry with a deeper conviction of its sentiments having come from the author's heart; and of the enthusiasm, in whatever he describes, having been unfeigned and unexaggerated. He impresses us with the idea of a being, whose fine spirit had been long enough in the mixed society of the world to be polished by its intercourse, and yet withdrawn so soon as to retain an unworldly degree of purity and simplicity. He was advanced in years before he became an author; but his compositions display a tenderness of feeling so youthfully preserved, that even in a vein of humour so far from being extinguished by his ascetic habits, that we can scarcely regret his not having written them at an earlier period of his life. For he blends the determination of age with an exquisite and ingenious sensibility; and though he sports very much with his subjects, yet when he is in earnest, there is a gravity of long-felt conviction in his sentiments, which gives an uncommon ripeness of character to his poetry.

"It is due to Cowper to fix our regard on this unaffectedness and authenticity of his works, considered as representations of himself, because he forms a striking instance of genius writing the history of its own secluded feelings, reflections, and enjoyments, in a shape so interesting as to engage the imagination like a work of fiction. He has invented no character in fable, nor in the drama: but he has left a record of his own character, which forms not only an object of deep sympathy, but a subject for the study of human nature. His verse, it is true, considered as such a record, abounds with opposite traits of severity and gentleness, of playfulness and superstition, of solemnity and mirth, which appear almost anomalous; and there is, undoubtedly, sometimes an air of moody versatility in the extreme contrasts of his feelings. But looking to his poetry as an entire structure, it has a massive air of sincerity. It is founded in steadfast principles of belief; and if we may prolong the architectural metaphor, though its arches may be sometimes gloomy, its tracery sportive, and its lights and shadows grotesquely crossed, yet altogether it still forms a vast, various, and interesting monument of the builder's mind. Young's works are as devout, as satirical, sometimes as merry as those of Cowper; and, undoubtedly more witty. But the melancholy and wit of Young do not make up to us the idea of a conceivable or natural being. He has sketched in his pages the ingenious, but incongruous form of a fictitious mind—Cowper's soul speaks from his volumes."

"Though the scenes of "The Task" are laid in retirement, the poem affords an amusing perspective of human affairs. Remote as the poet was from the stir of the great Babel, from the "confusæ sonus Urbis et illætabile murmur," he glances at most of the subjects of public interest which engaged the attention of his contemporaries. On those subjects, it is but faint praise to say, that he espoused the side of justice and humanity. Abundance of mediocrity of talent is to be found on the same side, rather injuring than promoting the cause, by its officious declamation. But nothing can be further from the stale commonplace and cuckooism of sentiment, than the philanthropic eloquence of Cowper—he speaks "like one having authority." Society is his debtor. Poetical expositions of the horrors of slavery may, indeed, seem very unlikely agents in contributing to destroy; and it is possible that the most refined planter in the West Indies, may look with neither shame nor compunction on his own image in the pages of Cowper, exposed as a being degraded by giving stripes and tasks to his fellow-creature. But such appeals to the heart of the community are not lost. They lie themselves silently in the popular memory; and they become, at last, a part of that public opinion, which must sooner or later, wrench the lash from the hand of the oppressor."

LONDON, Aug 29.

Sir Francis Burdett's address to the electors of Westminister.

Gentlemen—On reading the newspapers this morning, having arrived late yesterday evening, I was filled with shame, grief and indignation, at the account of the blood spilt at Manchester—THIS, then, is the answer of the boroughmongers to the petitioning people! THIS is the practical proof of our standing in no need of reform!—these the practical blessings of our glorious borough-mongery domination!—this the use of a standing army in time of peace! It seems our fathers were not such fools as some would make us believe, in opposing the establishment of a standing army, and sending King William's guards out of the country. Yet, would to heaven they had been Dutchmen, or Switzers, or Hessians, or Hanoverians, or any thing rather than Englishmen, who would have done such deeds! What! kill men unarmed! unresisting! and gracious God! women too, disfigured, maimed, cut down and trampled upon, by Dragoons! Is this England? This a Christian land? A land of freedom? Can such things be, and pass by us like a summer cloud, unheeded?—Forbid it every drop of English blood, in every vein! that does not proclaim its owner bastard! Will the gentlemen of England support or wink at such proceedings? They have a great stake in their country. They hold great estates, and they are bound in duty, and in honor, to consider them as retaining fees on the part of their country, for upholding its rights and liberties. Surely, they will at length awake! and find they have duties to perform—they never can stand tamely by, as lookers on, while bloody Neroes rip up their mother's womb! They must join the general voice, loudly demanding justice and redress; and head public meetings throughout the United Kingdom, to put a stop, in its commencement to a reign of terror and of blood; to afford consolation as far as it can be afforded, and legal redress to the widows and orphans mutilated victims of the unparalelled and barbarous outrage. For this purpose I propose that a meeting should be called in Westminster, which the gentlemen of the committee will arrange, and whose summons I will hold myself in readiness to attend. Whether the penalty of our meeting will be death, by military execution, I know not; but this I know, a man can die but once; and never better, than in vindicating the laws and liberties of his country.

Excuse this hasty address. I can scarcely tell what I have written. It may be a libel; or the attorney general may call it so—just as he pleases. When the seven bishops were tried for a libel, the army of James the Second then encamped on Hounslow Heath, for supporting arbitary power, gave three cheers on hearing their acquittal; the king, startled at the noise, asked "what's that?" "nothing sir!" was the answer, "but the soldiers shouting at the acquittal of the seven bishops." "Do you call that nothing?" replied the misgiving tyrant, and shortly after abdicated the government. 'Tis true James could not inflict the torture on his soldiers! could not tear the living flesh from their bones with a cat of nine tails!—could not then slay them alive!—Be this as it may, our duty is to meet!—and "England expects every man to do his duty!

I remain, gentlemen, most truly and faithful, your most obedient servant,
F. BURDETT.

Kirby Park, Aug. 22, 1819.

Sir F. Burdetts letter to lord Sidmouth.

COTTONBROOK, Aug. 28.

My lord.—Hearing your lordship had applied to the gentleman through whose hands my address to the electors of Westminster was transmitted to the newspapers to give up the author, and at the same time intimated that a refusal would subject him, as well as the editors of the papers to a ministerial prosecution; I take the liberty, in order to save your lordship further trouble, and also the gentlemen above mentioned an unjust prosecution, to inform your lordship, that I am the author of the address in question; and moreover to assure your lordship, that although penned in a hurry, and under the influence of strongly excited feelings, I can discover nothing in it, on a re-perusal, unbecoming the character of an honest man and an Englishman.

I remain your lordship's most obedient and very humble servant,
FRAS. BURDETT.

Lord Viscount SIDMOUTH.

Military Expedition to the Falls of St. Anthony.—Lieut. Col. Leavenworth, with a battalion of the 5th infantry, arrived at Prairie du Chien about the middle of August. He had conducted his battalion a thousand miles by water from Detroit to Fox river of Green-bay; thence up the Fox river and across the portage (three miles) to the navigable waters of the Ouisconsin, where he constructed a craft for the transport of his troops, and sailed down the Ouisconsin (180 miles) to its confluence with the Mississippi, where the village and fort of Prairie du Chien is situated. Col. Leavenworth intended in a very few days to ascend the Mississippi to the Falls of St. Anthony, distant three or four hundred miles, where he would arrive in time to shelter his troops, and to accomplish the views of the government by establishing a post at the Falls in the course of this summer.

[St. Louis Gaz.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22.

The 5th regiment, under the command of Col. Leavenworth, have established the Post at the mouth of St. Peters River.—They were delayed at Prairie du Chien for some time waiting for supplies. From the accounts we have received, the Indians are peaceable and friendly, and no difficulty from them was experienced.

Col. Leavenworth is an intelligent and useful officer. His regiment is in fine order and good discipline. Notwithstanding the hardships the officers and men suffered on their route, there were none sick when they arrived at Prairie du Chien. From the established, character and reputation of Col. Leavenworth and his regiment, the public expect the most favorable result from the expedition, and we are satisfied their expectations will be completely realized.

New-York Western Canal.—A letter from a gentleman in Rome, to the editor of the Hudson Wing, dated the 27th ult. states that the water is now in the canal for the distance of nine miles, commencing about four miles below that village; and that the commissioners and engineers have passed in boats drawn by horses, upon the canal, upwards of 8 miles. The writer adds, that "before the close of the season, salt will undoubtedly be carried from Salina to Utica by means of the canal."

THE SIGHTS I HAVE SEEN.

The following condensed chronology of events may be taken as a nut shell argument in proof of an affirmation, which though few might dispute, is still open to controversy by the captious sophist. We owe it to the pen of the Reverent M. Dutens, a gentleman well known as a literary & diplomatic character. It is taken from a sketch lately published called 'The sights a have seen;' and contains a more compressed view of the leading events of modern times than we have seen. As such, we offer it to our readers.—Lancaster Journal

'I have seen a king imprisoned by his son; 5 emperors massacred, five kings assassinated, six kings deposed, five republics annihilated, and a great kingdom effaced from the map of Europe. I have seen England lose in eight years half North America, after possessing it more than a century. I have seen her verifying the sentiments of an ancient, (that the empire of the seas gives that of the land) take the cape of Good Hope & the Island of Ceylon from the Dutch: Malta, Egypt, and several colonies from the French. I have seen her dictate the law to the king of Denmark at Copenhagen, and carry her victorious arms into the most remote parts of the world. I have seen this same England, in 1780, resist the combined efforts of Europe, of America and the northern powers, who formed an armed neutrality against her maritime dominion. I have seen her in the revolutionary war, oftentimes destitute of allies and alone opposing the enormous power of France, of Italy, of Denmark, and of Russia. I have seen the son of an Englishman go out to India, as writer to a mercantile company: but quitting this service, when very young, to embrace the military life, afterwards rising to the head of an army, dethrone a most powerful prince in the east, place another on his throne, conquer a part of Hindostan, and raise the British Dominion in that quarter to the pre-eminence which it now enjoys.

I have seen, what has no example in history, a little Corsican Gentleman conquer Italy; force the emperor of Germany to make a disgraceful peace; take Malta in two days; Egypt in a month; return from thence and place himself on the throne of the Bourbons; and all in less than four years, from May, 1795, to November 1799. I have seen him transport his army and artillery in the midst of winter, over the most difficult pass of the Alps and in a single battle, decide at once the fate of Germany and of Italy. I have seen this same Corsican gentleman order the Pope to Paris, in 1804, to crown him emperor of the French, and deprive him of the temporal possessions which his ancestors had enjoyed for more than a thousand years.

I have seen him declare himself king of Italy. I have seen him braving a formidable league which was directed against him, march to Hungary, in six weeks; give the law three times to the emperor of Germany, compel him to abdicate the imperial crown of the Cæsars; deprive him of a part of his dominions; force the emperor of Russia twice to retire: and soon after oblige him to march to his assistance against the emperor of Austria. I have seen him destroy the power of the king of Prussia in fifteen days, and strike all Europe with dismay. I have seen him dethrone five kings, and create eight others; annex Holland to France; dictate to Spain as if it were one of his provinces; employ her forces as his own and at last take possession of the whole kingdom. I have seen him pronounce a divorce between himself and his own wife, whom he had previously, at his own coronation, declared to be empress of France and the partner of his throne. In short, I have seen him extend his dominions further than those of Charlemagne, and find nothing that could resist his ambition, but the king of Great Britain, sometimes with the troops of the continent in his pay.'

Such are some of the strange sights which Mr. Duens has seen, and the most striking of which those who are much younger than he is have beheld with equal consternation and surprise.

FIRE EATER.

Mons. Chaber, the celebrated fire-eater, exhibited his wonderful capability of resisting the effects of heat, at the theatre, Penzance, on the night of Monday last. After going through the various feats of standing in melted lead, eating burning torches, &c. he concluded by getting into a frame work, on which was hung a number of rockets, and to which he was to set fire, whilst he remained exposed to the flame, while his cloths were literally burnt from his body. On exhibiting this experiment, the house became filled with smoke, and the sulphurous smell became so intolerable, that the auditory were quickly forced to seek for a purer atmosphere. But as the means of egress did not allow of their doing this as quickly as was necessarry, several persons fainted, and a scene of general confusion ensued. The screams for assistance became loud and piercing; a cry of fire was raised, and the crowd that quickly assembled, lost no time in breaking through the roof, in order to extricate those imprisoned within, who, by tumbling over each other, had nearly blocked up the ordinary passages. Happily this expedient, by allowing the smoke to evaporate, and giving an opportunity of removing to the open air, those who had become insensible, prevented a fatal termination of the disaster, which in all probability, would have otherwise occurred.

London pap.

A letter to the editors, under the date of September 19th, from the neighborhood of Mobile (Alabama,) affords a very distressing account of a mortality at that place. The Yellow Fever, in its most malignant form, prevails at Mobile. The whole population of the town does not exceed eight or nine hundred. But there died, in the week preceding the date of the letter, on Monday 7; Tuesday 9; Wednesday 6: Thursday 11: Friday 7; Saturday 12; Sunday, before 9 o'clock 4. Making an average of nearly eight per day, or one per day out of every hundred souls! The plague cannot be worse than this: and what is most extraordinary, the Mobile paper of the 15th is silent on the subject; as silent as the New-Orleans papers are, whilst disease is peopling their cemetries with scores a day. Our informant adds that the town of Blakely is entirely evacuated, as he is told, in consequence of the sickness. It is unpleasant to communicate such news; but it would be treacherous to withhold it.

Manufactures and the Mechanic arts, are daily improving in France. The Cashmere shawls of that country, are now fully equal to those of India. The Angola goats, lately imported into that country, will add new facilities and new means of rivaling the proudest fabrics of the east. The Porcelain and Hat manufactories of France, excel every other part of Europe.

WALTER FORTUNE,
Fourth street, above Wood.

Pittsburgh, Octobe 8 3

Bank of the United States,

AUGUST 24, 1819.

THE frequent demands made upon the Bank for the payment of its notes on the production of half notes, alledging the loss of the corresponding halves; and the liability to impositions and fraudulent practices to which it is exposed by paying such claims, from which it is advised it cannot be duly protected by any evidence which may accompany such claims or any security which may be given to indemnify it, render it necessary to refuse the payment of such demands. They grow out of the voluntary act of the party who separates the parts of the notes, and he alone ought to bear the inconveniences and losses consequent upon the act. But as the practice, however improper, has been a common one, and the Bank is unwilling, without apprizing the public of its intention, to withhold even a questionable claim upon it, these demands will be meet with as usual heretofore until the 1st of November next. But is hereby given, that the Bank of the United States will not after the first of November next hold itself responsible upon any of its notes which shall be voluntarily cut into parts, except on the production of all the parts.

Notice

By order of the Board of Directors.

JONA. SMITH Cashier.

PITTSBURGH.

Friday, Oct. 22, 1819.

In Philadelphia, Robert M'Mullin has been elected to the State Senate, and James Thackara, Josiah Randall, Wm. J. Duane, Richard Powell and Wm. Lehman to the House of Representatives. Col. Caleb North is chosen Sheriff by a majority of nearly three thousand.—Though taken up later than many of the other candidates his distinguished revolutionary services gave him a claim to support that has been gratefully recognized. It is delightful to witness the justice and unanimity of feeling, on an appeal of this kind, which pervade the community, and which carry a point triumphantly in spite of ward-meeting arrangements and manoeuvres.

By a circular letter from the President of the Transylvania University established at Lexington, (Ken.) we learn that the Medical School, of that Institution, will open on the second Monday of November next. The following is a list of the professors:

Granville S. Pattison, M. D. Anatomy. Samuel Brown, M. D. Theory & Practice. Charles Caldwell, M. D. the Institutes and Materia Medica. Benjamin W. Dudley, M. D. Surgery. William H. Richardson, M. D. Oosterics and diseases of women and children. James Blythe, D. D. Chemistry. C. S. Rafinesque, Botany and Natural History.

The names of most of these gentlemen are familiar to us as men of high professional reputation. Dr. Pattison, the circular informs us, is from Scotland, and the testimonials which he brings from Dr. Astly Cooper of London, Dr. King of Glasgow, and other distinguished men of science, represent him as eminently qualified for the task which he has undertaken. He carries with him to Lexington an Anatomical Museum of great value. Two of the professors, Dr. Brown and Dr. Caldwell have passed through this place on their way to assume the duties of their respective stations. "The pressure of the times," it is remarked in the circular, "the difference of exchange between the west and the east, and the other numerous considerations which weigh upon the minds of many of our medical students, will prevent them from going to Philadelphia or New York for a professional education, and will deprive them of essential advantages if our exertions, or others of a similar nature in the west, should not receive extensive patronage and a generous support. The Trustees of this University have taken much pains, and subjected themselves to unusual expense to place the Medical School in its present situation, and to open to its present prospects,' &c.

We cheerfully comply with the request to give to these details as wide a circulation as possible, and hope that so spirited an enterprise will meet with the success it deserves. The prospects of the institution are represented as flattering. To be sure curiosity or some fancied superiority may still allure many young men to the Atlantic cities, but the solid reasons which have been mentioned will doubtless operate with the majority and overcome this fastidiousness.

It is impossible to reflect without admiration, upon our national career and the rapidity with which we are daily advancing towards perfection in every thing that is calculated to strengthen or to embellish a country. Within the recollection of many professional gentlemen, the American student was entirely dependant on the institutions of the mother country for his medical education, and no young man could pretend to the character of a regular bred physician without having attended the Lectures of London or Edinburgh. We have got over these colonial notions, yet the most sanguine could hardly have anticipated that in the space of a few years science would have successfully erected the standard of independence so far in the wilds. Such, however, is the natural order of things in the mighty march of this country's advancement. If knowledge be power we may safely assert that the sceptre of Empire is travelling westward."

Messrs. Patterson and Lambdin have lately received a number of copies of the "Addresses of the Philadelphia Society for the promotion of National Industry," published in an octavo volume. We do not know a work that is calculated to be more extensively useful at the present time; when the great question of manufactures is fairly at issue, and is to receive its final determination. These Addresses have had through the public prints, a wider circulation than perhaps any other series of essays, and have assisted very powerfully in awakening public attention to the important subjects which they discuss. Distinguished by cogent reasoning, apt illustration and extensive information, they have formed a mine which every newspaper and memorialist has largely drawn upon for fact and argument. The ruinous consequences of the system that we have so long blindly and pertinaciously followed, are exhibited with a clearness and precision which it is impossible to resist. No one who is called to the high task of legislation or who assumes the responsibility of advising on public measures should be without a copy of this work.

Letters from Madrid state, that the British and Russian ministers, resident at the Court of Spain, officially advised and urged the ratification of the Florida treaty.

A letter from Cadiz states, that a large number of British transports, which had been chartered for the purpose of joining the grand expedition from Cadiz, had been dismissed.

The first Election for Officers of the State of Albama took place about the middle of last month. We have heard only from Monroe county, in which W. W. Bibb had a majority of 90 votes over Marmaduke Williams, for the office of Governor. Nat. Int.

SHAWNEE, Sept. 18.

The sale of Lots in Pandalia (the site fixed upon for the seat of government of Missouri) took place on the 6th inst agreeably to public notice, and continued two days. The one hundred and fifty lots sold averaged $284 22 each, and the whole amount of sales was $ 35, 133. The greatest sum given for any lot was $789.

The town is composed of 61 squares, each of which (with the exception of the two appropriated for the public square) is divided into eight lots, eighty by one hundred and fifty two feet. There are eight ranges or squares, separated from each other by streets eighty feet wide, running due west from Kaskaskia river, whose course, past the town, is directly south. The site of the town is spoken of in the highest terms by those who were present at the sale, who add, that "there are several springs of water on the premises."

Preparations.

We have learned from a source entitled to the highest credit, that all the ship-carpenters on the other side of Lake Ontario, have been collected at Sackett's Harbor, and taken into pay by the American government. It is also certain that letters have been received by American discharged officers residing in this country, from their secretary of war, holding out inducements to them to re-enter the republican service. From the particulars communicated to us, it appears they are re-organising and completing their light dragoon regiments.—Canada Cour.

Pirates Captured.—By the brig Emma, at N. York, a New-Orleans paper of the 15th September, is received, which contains intelligence of the capture of a Pirate, and her prize, on the 29th of August. The United States Revenue cutters Louisiana, captain Loomis, and Alabama, (lately built at New-York,) while off the Dry Tortugas, fell in with an American bound from New-Orleans, on board of which were a number of Spanish ladies and gentlemen, who had been passengers in the Philomena, a Spanish schooner, captured by a pirate who had placed them in the American schooner. From their information it was judged that the pirate could not be far off; and the cutters determined to look out for her. Eight hours after they espied two sail, one of which stood for them; when within hail, she was ordered to send her boat on board, which was answered with a volley of musketry. But the pirate was soon silenced, and taken possession of. She proved to be the Brave, carrying two guns, manned by twenty four renegadoes, commanded by a person who calls himself Le Fage, fitted out at New-Orleans. The prize Philomena, which had been about a mile astern, during the action, was soon overhauled and recaptured. All the five vessels came into New-Orleans on the 5th September.

In the action, which lasted but a few minutes, the Alabama had four men wounded; two of which, including the first lieutenanat, dangerously. The Brave lost six of her crew killed; the remainder are in safe keeping in the N. O. prison. All the Spanish prisoners were liberated. Mr. Le Fage sailed under a printed commission, without date, however, signed 'HUMBERT, Governor of Texas.'

BEAUTIFUL EXTRACT.

"And worshipped, leaning upon the top of a staff" [Epistle to Hebrews.

It is a beautiful trait in the religion of the Bible, that, as it is founded upon truth, it is supported by simplicity, and is altogether independent of human grandeur, although at variance with the dictates of human pride. In the history of the patriarchs, we are presented with a picture of pure and undefiled religion, in its effects upon a people, who, as yet knew little of the refinements of society, at once, striking, impressive and deeply interesting. Whether we consider Abraham as calling with confidence on the Most High in a strange land; or Isaac, as walking abroad to meditate at eventide; or Jacob, when, in the language of the Apostle, he worshipped, leaning upon the top of his staff: we are equally impressed with the beauty of that religion which is thus seen to flourish, not amongst the most polished, but the most simple: not the most powerful, but the most obedient: not the most learned, but the most faithful of mankind. Thus are we taught to believe, that however pomp and splendour may seem to add to the effect of religion, or however imposing the colouring which they throw around it, yet as its object is to unite man with his Creator, it cannot be assisted by human power; it needs not the aid of adventitious circumstances. It is not amidst the crowd of assembled multitudes, nor in "temples made with hands," that its effects are only to be felt. He who pauses amid the labours of the day, or contemplates the beauties of nature at early dawn, or goeth into the fields to meditate at eventide, or with Jacob, worships, leaning upon the top of his staff—may doubtless feel, with its full force, the influence of the spirit of devotion. It was thus that the holy men of old were taught to trust in that Being, whose attributes are displayed in all his works; it is thus that the pious men, in every age, have learned to bow in deep humility, and with solemn reverence, before Him "who created the Heavens, and the work of whose fingers the stars are;" and it is thus that in our own minds, may be inculcated lessons of piety, and of unmurmuring obedience, that we may be taught to look upon the evils of this life as necessary preparatives to eternity, and every evil as subservient to the holy purposes of a being, whose mercy endureth for ever. We may thus, in youth, be preserved amid temptation; and in old age be enabled to look back with peace on our past lives; and with pious and grateful devotion, worship like the patriarch, "leaning upon the top of his staff."

For the Pittsburgh Gazette,

LOVE.

When slowly sinks the orb of day,
And mildly bright his latest ray,
O'er western hills is seen to play,
'Tis sweet to rove,
Along the gentle murm'ring rill,
Or o'er the wild and woody hill,
Where all around is soft and still,
Like gentle Love.

The gladden'd eye with rapture views,
A thousand mild and pensive hues,
That nature kind profusely strews,
O'er hill and grove;
And fancy like a truant child,
Disporting o'er the landscape wild,
Is soon bewildered and beguiled,
With dreams of Love.

No treacherous friend is near to cling,
About the heart he means to sting,
Nor wily foe in wait to spring,
Whene'er we move;
But far from man's polluted sphere,
Secure from all we hate or fear,
In solitude and silence here,
We think of Love.

Too false are men—their bosoms chill,
Knew not of friendship's generous thrill,
And all their soft professions still
So heartless prove,
That he who'd wear a wreath of flowers,
Must quit the world where danger lowers,
And hie him to the fairy bowers,
Of gentle love.

Yes! hard the path through life we tread,
With terrors strew'd, with woes o'erspread;
And yet we clung to what we dread,
And onward rove,
Through vista's dark and thorny ways,
Till buried in the gloomy maze,
The only light that round us plays,
Is shed by love.

Blest love! so constant and serene!
That sweet can gild the sylvan scene,
Give pleasure zest, sooth anger's spleen,
And pain remove!
No more when it can sooth or save,
The tear that dews the victim's grave,
The softest sorrow ever gave,
Is shed by Love!

Pittsburgh Manufacturing Association.

A NUMBER of the Mechanicks and Manufacturers of the City of Pittsburgh and its vicinity, anxious to promote and invigorate that spirit of domestic industry which is so essential to the prosperity of the western country, having entered into an association under the above denomination, inform the public that they have opened a large and convenient Brick Warehouse in Wood Street, between Front and Second Streets, for the reception and sale of the different articles which they manufacture, together with such articles of domestick produce and manufacture as may be deposited for sale, or consigned to their care; and have appointed George Cochran their Chief Clerk or Agent, to whom all orders and communications on the mercantile business of the association, will in future be addressed. They intend to receive, forward and dispose of all goods entrusted to their care, (especially articles of domestick produce and manufacture) on the most reasonable terms, and hope to give satisfaction to those who may please to favour them with their custom and patronage. From the variety and extent of domestic produce and manufactures which may be collected and offered for sale at their Warehouse, with punctuality in paying over the proceeds, and attention to business, a beneficial result is anticipated, as well to the vender as the purchaser.

All orders enclosing the cash for articles manufactured by the members of the association, or sold in their Warehouse, will be promptly and faithfully executed, at the lowest wholesale prices, without any charge for commission, and western current notes taken in payment.

It is also intended to exchange manufactured articles for country produce and raw materials, such as Iron, Lead, Wool, Cotton, Sugar, Salt, Whiskey, Bacon, Hogs-lard, Butter, Cheese, Flaxseed Oil, Hogs Bristles, Linen, Yarn, Rags.

Annexed is a list of articles now offered for Sale.

Steam Boats.

THE subscriber is fitting out TWO STEAM BOATS, which will commence running immediately—as follows—One boat to carry one hundred and fifty tons, to ply between New-Orleans and St. Louis; and the other to carry fifty tons, and to make three trips in each month, between the mouth of the Ohio and St. Louis, by means of which, freight or passangers can have a quick conveyance.

JACOB REED.

Town of PALERMO.

THE scite of this Town is on the bank of the Ohio river in Union county, state of Kentucky, immediately opposite the mouth of the Saline river, in the state of Illinois.

The Sale of Lots

will take place on the 20th day of October next, under the directions of the Commissioners appointed by the Court of Union county, and will continue from day to day, till Three Hundred are disposed of

will be one fourth down, one fourth in nine, one fourth in eighteen, and one fourth in twenty four months, with a deed of trust to secure the payment.

There is no situation on the Ohio between its source and mouth (with the exception of Louisville) which combines more or greater advantages than

PALERMO

—Union is allowed to be the most fertile county south of Green river, and the whole section of country between the Green and Cumberland rivers is well known to be peculiarly adapted to the culture of Tobacco than any other part of Kentucky. The population is increasing most rapidly, and by many of the most respectable and genteel families from Virginia, North Carolina and she old settled parts of Kentucky. This town is about 1200 miles above New-Orleans and lies in the direct course to Illinois, Missouri, Arkansaw, Kaskaskia and Red River countries, and shortens the distance at least thirty miles instead of going by Shawanee-town. In its immediate neighbourhood, are very large bodies of the richest land in the state—it is about 6 miles by water from the United States' Salt Works, and must become the deposit for the salt wanted in the adjacent counties of Kentucky, and a considerable portion of Tennesee.

PALERMO

is destined to become one of the greatest places on the whole river for steam works, having an inexhaustible coal mine within half a mile of the river, and the coal not a foot below the surface, and also within three or four miles of the town one of the richest ore banks in the western country.

PALERMO

possesses a great advantage over every other situation on the river above it, that steam-boats and others can at almost all seasons of the year come from and return to New-Orleans, there being never less than 12 feet water at its banks; the want of which advantage was severely felt from Pittsburgh as low as Shawaneetown last fall, at the former of which places an immense amount of goods was detained on account of the lowness of the water from September to December. An importing house at this place, getting goods from Baltimore, New-York or from Europe direct by way of New-Orleans, and having one or two branch steam boats, drawing not more than from two to two and an half feet water, would make incalculable profits by supplying the country as high as Louisville and up the different tributary streams of the Ohio with merchandize. This town is laid off on a beautiful plain or level extending from the river to the foot of the Curlew Hills, a distance of nearly a mile, and commands a fine view of the Ohio and Saline rivers.

Encouragement to Mechanics to settle in

PALERMO;

Fifty Lots

Will be given gratis in fee simple, (including those given to the acting Commissioners) also the use of pit coal for five years, for fuel, the use of an acre lot for five years for a garden, timber for the interior of a two story house building stone from the Curlew hills, on condition that the grantee build and completely finish in two years, a two story house aforesaid of brick or stone; the same privileges will be extented to purchasers at the first sale, but to no others. The situation is peculiarly well calculated for an industrious and prudent mechanic to realize a fortune in a short time; provisions are remarkably low, wages uncommonly high, and the savings of a few months can at any time be invested in the public lands by crossing over to Illinois, Indiana or Missouri, which will increase annually for years to come from 25 to 30 per cent.

PALERMO

is very healthy, well watered by a number of the purest springs, and at a distance of about eighteen miles are some of the most efficacious White Sulphur and Salt Sulphur Springs in the Western country, which are much resorted to. At the same time will be leased for a term of years, from

15 to 20 FARMS

Of 75 ACRES each, of as rich lands as the state affords, adjoining the town; and every stick of wood, every fowl, pig, shoat, lamb, mutton, vegetable, pound of butter or pint of milk that the farmer can spare will find a certain and ready market from the steam boats.

The following trades would meet with most encouragement, viz. Brick-makers, Brick layers, Carpenters, Black-smiths, Wheelwrights, Coopers, Cabiner makers, Tanners & Currriers, Shoemakers, Hatters and Tailors. None however need apply except such as are masters of their trades and sober and industrious. Any letters directed to the subscriber at Frankfort, Ken. (post paid) will be duly attended to.

COOKING STOVE

OR PORTABLE KITCHENS.

MANUFACTURED and sold by HENRY MILLER & Co in 2d street, two doors from the corner of Wood streets, Pittsburgh.

This Stove with fixtures complete, comprises every necessary article of apparatus for an extensive cooking establishment.

The different sizes are calculated to do the cooking for small or large families, publichouses and Steam-boats, and are so extremely simple in their construction as to be managed with ease by a child, twelve or fourteen years of age.

With this Stove may be cooked, by baking, roasting, boiling and by steam, a sufficiency of meats, fish, fowls and vegetables, to make a dinner for from 5 to 10 persons, while at the same time may be baked from 1 to 8 loaves of bread.

A wooden vessel containing from twenty to fifty gallons of water, can also be kept boiling, for the purposes of washing, &c. All these are done simultaneously and with one small fire.

The circumstance of these Stoves having got into very general use at the eastward, within 2 or 3 years past, particularly in the cities of New-York and Baltimore, with the rapid sale and general approbation they have met with since their first introduction last winter, west of the mountains, are sufficient testimonials of their utility and advantage.

The subscribers having purchased of the patentee the right for making and vending said Stoves in the Western country, is ready to execute with punctuality and despatch, all orders at his Manufactory, as above, where also may be had, Cast and Sheet Iron Stoves, suitable for Parlours, Offices, Stores & Bed-rooms, to which boilers may be attached if wanted.

The proprietors to accommodate persons residing in different parts of the country, have opened a store in Main street, Cincinnati, and also appointed agents, as follows—OHIO, N. C. Findly, Zanesville; James Flanger, Lancaster; John McCoy, Chilicothe. KENTUCKY, Samuel January, Sen. & Co. Maysville; J. & P. Dudley, Frankfort; J. B Bowles, Louisville; Luther Stephens & Co. A Most Valuable Estate

FOR SALE.

THAT beautiful estate, commonly known by the name of MONTOURS' or LONG ISLAND, about five miles below Pittsburgh, in the Ohio river, containing in the whole 1,000 acres, is offered for sale. It is divided into three separate tracts, on each of which there are handsome improvements; the land is of the best quality, well timbered, and not subject to overflow. It is universally esteemed, both as to soil and situation, the finest property in the western country. The proprietors would prefer selling the whole in a body, but to suit purchasers, it may be divided into three tracts.

The terms may be known by applying to Major Isaac Craig on the premises, or to the subscriber, who is agent for the proprietors, at his office in Pittsburgh.
